Research, leads and new business conversations.

Prospect research, lead delivery and business-development support, backed by workflow creation, training and quality review.

The short version

For SokolDev, I researched prospective clients, delivered leads and supported the team's work to earn meetings. Alongside business development, I contributed to research methods, analyst training, workflows and quality standards.

My contribution

I researched companies and prospects, assessed relevance and supplied leads to the team. I also helped turn interested conversations into tailored service approaches, one-page breakdowns and proposals.

My wider SokolDev responsibilities included research and R&D, analyst training, workflow creation, quality maintenance and strategy. This connected day-to-day prospecting with more consistent research and delivery practices.

What the work delivered

Researched prospects and lead lists for business-development activity.

Meetings earned through the team's outreach work, supported by research and follow-through.

Service approaches and proposal support that connected a prospect's needs with a practical scope of work.

Research workflows, quality review and training support for the wider team.

How this helps your business

If your team can deliver its service but needs help identifying suitable companies and preparing relevant conversations, I can support the research, lead preparation and follow-through.

The scope can start with a focused research brief and sample list, then extend to outreach coordination, reply handling and proposal support as needed.

Engagement scope

This case study covers SokolDev's business-development and internal research work. The AlphaRose investor campaign is presented separately, with its own results.

Sources & scope

Based on my SokolDev responsibilities and work completed, as confirmed in October 2026. Outcomes are described qualitatively; no numerical lead or meeting total is claimed. Private prospect identities and correspondence are excluded.
